

DRS. RIGTER & MURRAY

ARE about opening an Office in Cynthiana, for the purpose of offering the inhabitants of Harrison, Bourbon and Nicholas counties the benefit of

HOMOEOPATHIC PRACTICE,
And of establishing in connection therewith Electro-Thermal Baths for the treatment of chronic diseases.

The value of these Baths as a Remedial Agent has been too large and too well established, to need comment.

Persons living at a distance can consult by letter, giving accurate details of symptoms, which medicine will be returned to them. The value of this increasing practice is an ever increasing fact.

Strangers visiting Cynthiana for the benefit of the Baths, will find excellent accommodations awaiting.

METROPOLITAN HOTEL,

CINCINNATI, Oct. 17, 1866.
AFTER thinking the traveling public for their past liberal patronage, I take pleasure in saying that I have this day associated with me in the

METROPOLITAN HOTEL,

Mr. W. A. THURSTON, long and well known as the proprietor of that most excellent hotel the Bonanza House, of Paris, Ky., and to his hosts of friends I need only say that he is still a fine hotel-keeper, and knows well the wants of the public.

N. WEARE,

Having associated myself together in the well-known Metropolitan Hotel, we would say that the house is in splendid condition; for convenience, style and comfort is not surpassed by any hotel in the city; and we hope by giving prompt personal attention to the wants of our guests, to give satisfaction to any and all who may be pleased to call upon us. We will add that, while others are charging $3.50 and $4.50, we are charging only THREE DOLLARS PER DAY. Hoping to have many friends.
We are respectfully,

A Sad and Eventful History.

[From the Chicago Times, 31.]
On Saturday afternoon the history of a strange and eventful life was developed at the police headquarters. At this time a middle-aged, worn, haggard and besotted woman entered the Central station and inquired for Superintendent Rehn. That worthy individual was pointed out to her; she silently handed him a letter from William Beck, the superintendent of the Milwaukee police, the contents of which reveal a history so strange and incredulous as to be almost beyond belief. One finds such tales between "yellow covers," but they are seldom revealed in real life, even among the annals of our police court.

It appears that this degraded outcast of to-day, was twenty years ago one of the most courted and beautiful belles of Chicago. Her father was a trader of reputed wealth, and it was his intention to marry his daughter to a person of his choice, and who should be judged from a financial standpoint. The young girl was bitterly opposed to the match. Not at this time she loved some one else, but she dissented on general principles, and threatened open rebellion. At this juncture of affairs, an excursion party from Milwaukee visited this city. Among them was a young, well-to-do commission merchant. He was handsome, generous to a fault, and beloved by many worthy friends. At a party in this city the two were introduced. Both were equally impressed with each other's appearance, and, in the course of the evening, their intimacy ripened to such an extent, that the young woman made the Milwaukeean her confidante in regard to the mercenary designs of her father, and told him the story. The narrative had a powerful effect upon the young merchant. He was already more than half in love, and this unexpected phase settled the question with him. He proposed on the spot, was accepted, and on the following day a license was taken out, and the couple secretly married. The old trader, on learning the news, swore, raved, and finally discarded his daughter altogether. This matter was, however, taken philosophically by the young couple. They loved each other for their own sake; the husband had sufficient of this world's goods, and a few days afterwards the young bride was duly installed in the home of the young merchant. For a year all passed pleasantly, and there was not a happier household in the city of bricks.

About this time a financial crisis swept over the country. Many who had previously supposed themselves perfectly secure lost their all in the crash, and among this number was the merchant. He bore the shock manfully, and immediately entered another house as a salaried clerk. His young wife, however, fretted continually under the new order of things, and upbraided him for marrying her under false pretenses. This at last produced a change in the man. He took to drinking and in less than a year was reduced to a mere wreck of his former self. The wife, who had been all her life reared in affluence, sought the society of other men, more able to afford her the luxuries for which her soul craved, and which her own home denied to her. She was remonstrated with by friends, but to no effect, and one fine morning she left her husband and the city altogether. He lived a year or two of miserable existence after this affair, and then actually died in the gutter. The young wife, it appears, went to Washington, and lived with him most of the time. In the course of time she became the mistress of a noted congressman. As such she controlled a sumptuous establishment, and was the particular pet of a large circle. Full of intrigue, she became on intimate terms with a cabinet minister, which coming to the ears of her congressional paramour, led to separation, and from this time forward she passed rapidly downward. For a number of years she was an inmate of the fashionable houses of ill-repute in Washington, New York and Philadelphia. Her evil habits, however, soon barred the doors to these establishments, and from thenceforward she was one of the most degraded class.

Some months since, she became possessed with an unaccountable desire to once more visit the scene of her former purity and happiness. It was so long ago, and Milwaukeeans and the people of Chicago had forgotten her. She passed among them unheeded, except to be pitied or despised. Shortly after her arrival, she became very ill, and on recovering she found herself penniless. Aye, even worse. She expected shortly to become a mother. Thus situated, she applied at the office of the superintendent of police of Milwaukee, for permission to enter the poorhouse. Perceiving her to be a woman of more than ordinary intelligence, and with some still apparent remnant of refinement, he questioned her, and thus learned her fearful history. Part of the story was familiar to him, and knowing that some wealthy relatives of the unfortunate creature are residents of this city he recommended her to the tender mercies of our city authorities, to care and watch over her. Her friends have been notified, and express a willingness to do all in their power to alleviate her present sad condition, and, if possible, to prevail on her to abandon her life of shame. Such is in brief the history of a woman tempted by dress and luxuries to leave the home of love and husband. Few lives may be so checkered, but many there are who have commenced as this, and will so terminate.

A STEAMBOAT INCIDENT.
A funny scene transpired on board the steamer St. James, on her last trip down. The St. James, be it known, is a favorite boat with wedding parties on account of her superior accommodations and the general elegance which distinguish her. At Aberdeen, a young man, dressed in his Sunday's best, and showing in all his movements, that this was the happiest day of his life, came aboard, leading by the hand a timid young woman, who had sworn that very day to love, honor or hate, the young man aforesaid. They were on a wedding tour to Cincinnati, to see the big bridge, the Nicholson pavement, and other objects of interest. Approaching clerk Regnier, the young man steeped in bliss said:

"Look-a-here, Mr. Clerk, I and Marier have just doubled teams for life.—(Marier's blushes some more, and ties to draw away, but the toiler half clings to her.) We've determined to take a day to ourselves and go to Cincinnati. Now, we want a—(hesitating) a room—well, a room—(with desperate energy) both together."

Bride, (reproachfully)—"Josier!"

Single room (stoutly)—"That's what I say, and we want the best room you've got on the boat."

The clerk disposed of them satisfactorily, and "Marier," blushing more than ever, retired to their state room, if being late in the night; while her "Josier," lighting a cigar paced the forward cabin with the importance which every young man feels when he first assumes the responsibility of paying a young woman's board as a consideration for her changing her name.

Josier at length concluded to seek his "Marier." Accordingly he directed his footsteps towards his state-room. Softly he tapped at the state-room door—but no response from within fell upon his listening ear. Then he gave a louder rap, and applying to the key-hole, whispered shrilly: "Marier, open the door to your Josier." Still no reply. He turned the handle, and the door being unlocked, it opened readily.

He advanced one foot inside, gave a look of bewilderment, and then rushing back into the cabin in a state of frenzy, he screamed: Stop the boat!—She's gone! overboard, may be! Captain! Mr. Clerk! Where's my Marier? Has she drowned herself? Why didn't I get two rooms? Oh, dear, tell the pilot to stop her; give me back my Marier!" By this time Capt. Oakes, backed by his clerks, Regnier and Ross and reinforced by the passengers generally, was on the spot.

"What the deuce is the matter?"—said the Captain.

"Oh, Captain!" said the distracted bridegroom, tearing up and down the cabin, "she always was a timid gal—afraid of getting married—gone crazy and jumped overboard—why didn't I get two rooms? Oh, dear!"

He then pointed at the state-room in which he had expected to find his "Marier."

"Why, it's empty," said the captain.

"Yes," said Josier, tearing his hair, "and don't you see the outdoor's open? She went crazy, I tell ye, and jumped overboard." Then falling upon the captain's neck, he screamed, "Oh, give me back my Marier!"

At this moment a state-room door adjoining opened, and there was a glimpse of a snowy night-cap, while a low, sweet voice said:

"Josier, you're a fool; what are you tartin' round at that rate for? Have you been thinking?"

Josier gave a yell of astonishment and delight, and put himself inside of that state-room door in a twinkling. He had made a mistake of the number of his state-room, that's all. Marier hady' gone crazy, and she hadn't jumped overboard.

National Convention.

[From the N. H. States and Union.]
Last week we published an item stating the fact that the Democracy of Kentucky had recommended the holding of a National Democratic Convention about the 1st of May next. We notice that this action of our Kentucky friends is meeting with a hearty response from the Democratic press of the whole country. This is right. Let us have the convention. Our country is in peril. Madmen are hurrying us to ruin. Let the Democracy step in and stop it. Let the proposed convention be made up of good sound Democrats, and nobody else. We want no hybrid concern. We have had too many of that sort already.

We would like to see the real brains and wisdom of the true Democracy assemble and organize upon the old Jeffersonian principles, without any of the "modern improvements." The attempt to improve those principles of government is about as sensible as for atheists and infidels to improve the teachings of Christ in the New Testament. The thing can't be done. The principles of '76 and '87 were right then and can never be otherwise. Let crazy fanatics and rotten Democrats howl around and twaddle about to the end of the world if they will. It is time we should commence to fight the one on the only sensible ground for manly encounter, and that we ignore and kick out the others as too poor and cumbersome rubbish to be hugged another inch.

Let us have a true and thorough-going Democratic convention, or none. With this understanding it shall have our support, but not without. We are sick and disgusted with the whole race of policy and expediency mongers. We say down with them and all their works. They are the curse of the party and the country. The Connecticut Democracy are in for the convention. They are to meet on the 8th of January "for the purpose of considering the revolutionary acts of the present Radical Congress. This convention will also determine upon the propriety of making nominations for State nominations for State officers, and of recommending to the people of the thirty-six States, the necessity of a national convention, to adopt such measures as will thwart the schemes of the traitors who are endeavoring to subvert the Constitution and Government of our fathers." That is the language of the call and it rings well.

Let New Hampshire respond and let us all give the Radical traitors to understand that they must stop their infernal disunion schemes or we will fight them with the weapons to which freedom resort when all other means have failed.

The noblest Roman of them all.

A REMINISCENCE OF THE WAR.
[From the Glasgow (Ky.) Times.]
When the Confederate army left Bowling Green, in February, 1862, it was accompanied on its long retrograde march by the Provisional Government of Kentucky, the Hon. Geo. W. Johnson, Governor, who always remained near the headquarters of the army. When the battle of Shiloh came on he was invited by his relative, General Albert Sidney Johnson, to accompany him on the field as an aid. But when the firing commenced, his horse becoming frantic and unmanageable, he let him go and made his way on foot to the 4th Kentucky Regiment, and reported to Captain Ben. Monroe, asked for a musket. Upon being remonstrated with he said: "I am determined to share the dangers of the battle with these boys; they are my friends and relatives, and I feel better with them."

The Governor was very popular, and the effect of this act of devotion was altogether indescribable. He was just in time for the splendid engagement which ensued between the 2th Kentucky and the 46th Ohio regiments, which lasted an hour and twenty minutes. Although fierce and terrific, it was altogether decisive—500 Federals were placed hors du combat on the field. During that glorious day the noble old man pressed forward shoulder to shoulder with the boys he loved so well, his fine classic face beaming with that enthusiasm which the just cause ever inspires. Often when the battle would lull for a short time the officers would collect around him and insist on giving him a horse, but he was often refused.

Late in the evening Prentiss' brigade surrendered. This was the last of Gen. Grant's grand army. Those who were not killed, wounded or prisoners had sought refuge under the protecting banks of the Tennessee river. That part of Prentiss' line in our front was in an open field, and there were many acres of ground covered with dead and wounded Yankees, for they had fought well. The Confederate flag never waved over a better contested field, and victory was never more completely baptised in blood.

At this time a group of field officers of the old brigade had assembled to exchange a short greeting. I can see them now. There was Hunt, of the 9th, Lewis, of the 6th, and Traub and others, of the 4th, all of them blackened with the smoke of battle, but their faces bright with joy, and heroic blood was prominent in every feature. Just then the old Governor left his place in ranks, and, approaching them, was warmly greeted. Addressing Major Monroe he said: "Tom, this is Shiloh, and the Redeemer liveth." The scene was exceedingly grand; the old man's words sounded like prophecy, and I felt sure the name of the battle would be Shiloh throughout all coming time, though I had not heard it before. He then resumed his place, and the line moved forward, and on the morrow, in the battle which followed with Gen. Buell, who crossed the river in the night with an army of forty thousand fresh men, the good old Governor fell, and his blood mingled with that of the brave boys of Fayette and Franklin.

There was no nobler sacrifice offered for the cause of liberty on that dark and bloody ground, and we might well apply to him the language of the poet:

"We tell thee down without a sigh,
For thou art freedom's now and fame's;
One of the few, the honorable names;
That were not born to die."

Captain Robert G. Welles' late of the regular army, and a son of the Hon. Thaddeus Welles, of Glensbury, Conn., committed suicide by shooting himself on Friday evening, in presence of his father. Mr. Welles sat reading his evening paper, when Robert, who had been conversing with him, exhibited a pistol. His father remonstrated against carrying such a weapon, and asked his son to give it to him. The latter declined, though in no unfriendly spirit. Suddenly approaching his father, he flung his left arm around his neck and kissed him, when, with the single exclamation, "Farewell, father," he sank back into a chair, put the pistol to his head, and fired—all so quickly that his father, though springing up to arrest him, was unable to prevent it. The wound proved fatal in a little more than an hour. The poor fellow is believed to have been insane, having been in very low spirits since the sudden death of a brother, and for some days previous to the suicide had suffered from ill health. Captain Welles was 24 years old. He served with great credit in the regular army, where he gained his rank, and resigned not long after the close of the war. He was a young man of uncommon talents, and every body esteemed him.

WHISKY FRAUDS.—The question how to prevent the immense frauds which are constantly perpetrated on the Government in the whisky distilleries throughout the country in evading the $2 tax on whisky is seriously agitating the minds of the members of both the Senate and the House Committee on Finance. One of the ablest members in the Committee sees but one solution of this important matter. The English and French system, he maintains, will effectually put a stop to the frauds. Let the Government take possession of all of the distilleries in the United States, and do all the manufacturing. The aggregate amount of property invested in the distillation of spirits in the United States is estimated at $20,000,000. The Government can seize and confiscate the property, and pay this amount in the first year, and save over $50,000,000 to the Government. The estimated amount of whisky made last year was a little over 60,000,000 gallons. At $2 per gallon, the Government ought to have had $120,000,000 revenue. It was not much over one-twentieth of that sum. Some idea may thus be obtained of the frauds that have been and are constantly being perpetrated in regard to this matter.

A horrible crime says a French journal, has been perpetrated at Epfig. A Jew, named Wolf, a creditor of a farmer called Metz, was sent for by the latter under pretext that the amount of a debt of 7,500 francs, was to be paid once paid to him. He went and as he did not return, his family became alarmed. The police were communicated with and a search was made in Metz's house. In the barn, buried seven feet under the floor, Wolf's body was found, horribly mutilated. The farmer has also, it was ascertained, forged the murdered man's name to a receipt for the sum due.—Both he and a farm servant and have been taken into custody.

A. J. MOREY, Editor.

Our Legislative body, which convened on last Thursday the 3rd, now has before them and perchance by this time under consideration, the final and perhaps the ablest message of our present executive. After having perused it carefully, we feel justified in pronouncing it good, very good, in fact far better and in most, if not quite all of its features more consistent with the feelings and principles of the majority of our people than we had any reason to anticipate. It contains many wise suggestions that we have no doubt will be promptly considered and as promptly adopted. As to the pardoning power, we are very sorry indeed, that it should have been so freely exercised in freeing from fines and punishment those who dared tamper with the elective franchise, from the penalty alone it can release them, for the stain and odium of that crime, will forever crimson their skirts. The policy of pardoning, which it claims, was copiously exercised in reference to soldiers of either army in the late struggle, who were charged by indictment with various offences committed while soldiers and the reasons therefor we cordially approve, and could such charges which in many instances are vague and without foundation and are but the vile offspring of vindictive spirits and petty malice, be blotted not only from the records of our various courts, but from the minds of our people, we should be far happier as communities and more prosperous in the business concerns of life.

In submitting the proposed amendment to the constitution to the consideration of the Legislature, there is also with it, submitted several clear and cogent reasons why it should receive the contempt it so richly deserves by the most prompt rejection which it will assuredly receive, for we, thanks to the indomitable will and potent voice of our citizens, have stanch representatives who will with proud scorn hurl back the insult with reproving force in the face of that brutal crew, that dare propose such an outrage, upon the liberties of our people.

Again we would say that with the tenor of the message throughout, we are pleased and feel much encouraged and believe that our beloved State, though through the storms of war, she may have deserved the name, given years ago to an excommunicated sister, the "Rip Vanwinkle of the south, asleep on her post," will now that she has been awakened by the smiles of peace, keep an unfurled banner, proudly floating in the breeze, ever contending for the right, with always a firm and mercifully outstretched arm to the conquered.

We copy the following from the Governors Message. It refers particularly to federal affairs.

FEDERAL RELATIONS.

Having laid before you all such matters of local concernment, and such as pertain exclusively to the jurisdiction of the State, as are deemed of importance for this special communication, your attention is finally directed to a subject which embraces the interests of the Nation as well as the State.

The restoration of the Government of the United States upon the basis fixed by the Constitution, and laws pursuant thereto, which was the legitimate result of the victory of the Union armies, and of the entire surrender of rebellion, followed by peace, is yet denied to us. The organized rebellion against the Government, which was overcome by arms, was not more hostile or less dangerous to our free form of government, than the spirit and temper of the dominant sectional majority that now denies a constitutional restoration. The armies raised by our Government were for the avowed purpose of preserving the Union as formed by the Constitution. The soldier fought to attain this object. Now that the victory is ours, and armed rebellion has ceased, we have the strange spectacle of a dominant sectional majority in Congress denying to those who rebelled the privilege of submission to the government as it exists; and to those who fought to maintain it, the fruits of their victories, and the security of the government which they sought to maintain. A new and different government is sought to be forced upon the Nation, as a condition precedent to the recognition of the existing Constitution.

The frenzy for destruction which seized upon the people of the Southern States, now that they have returned to reason, has been transferred to the Northern and some of the Western States; and the fires of fanaticism stir the blood of the colder North with the intense glow and heat of sectional hate of the South, and urges forward its votaries, in the fatal blindness of their passion, to the destruction of that Government which has just been so successfully and triumphantly sustained and vindicated by the valor and endurance of our soldiers. The denial is made under the pretense of love for the Union; when it is patent that nothing but a desire to perpetuate power in the hands of a sectional party prompts their action. The just balance of powers between the State and National Governments is sought to be destroyed, and the centralization of powers to be established in the Federal Government, through amendments to the Constitution, which, if successful, will destroy those rights reserved to the States and people, and which are essential to the preservation of free Government.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

Since your adjournment the Secretary of State of the United States has transmitted to me an authenticated copy of a "joint resolution" proposing amendments to the Constitution, purporting to have been submitted "by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled (two-thirds of both Houses concurring)" to the Legislatures of the several States, to become part of the Constitution when ratified by three-fourths thereof. I now lay the same before you for your consideration, with some views in relation thereto, which impress me as worthy of thought.

The power to amend, alter, or change the Constitution in a free government is an inalienable right; and the mode prescribed for exercising this right is essentially conservative and anti-revolutionary. The modes prescribed by our Constitution, in which, only, amendments may be made, conserve the right, by removing all excuse for overthrowing or changing the government, either by force or innovation. It is as revolutionary to disregard the requirements of the Constitution, in changing or amending it, under pretense of following its forms, as to overturn it by force.

The Constitution of the United States secures different modes of amendment, either of which followed, is lawful; none other is; and thus, by its increased facilities for amending, magnifies the wrong of attempting to alter or amend otherwise than as provided.

Has the "proposed" amendment been submitted according to the requirements and with the sanctions of the Constitution? If it has, we should consider and weigh the amendment proposed, and adopt or reject as in our judgment will most redound to the welfare of our country; but if not so submitted, should be promptly rejected as unworthy of further consideration.

The Constitution of the United States, Article V, Section 1, provides that "THE CONGRESS, whenever two-thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this Constitution; or, on the application of the Legislatures of two-thirds of the several States shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid, to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several States, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by Congress," &c.

What is the "Congress" of which two-thirds of both houses have to concur in proposing amendments? Article I, Section 1, makes a Congress "consist of a Senate and House of Representatives." Section 2 provides: "The House of Representatives shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several States; and the electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State Legislature." Section 3. § 1. "The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, chosen by the Legislature thereof, for six years; and each Senator shall have two votes."

"The Congress," therefore, as defined by the Constitution, consists of a House of Representatives composed of members chosen every two years, by the people of the several States, and of a senate composed of two senators from each State, chosen by the Legislature thereof for six years; two-thirds of whom (i. e., of the members chosen of each house) must concur in submitting amendments.

An amendment to the Constitution of the United States is not proposed to the legislatures of the several states unless it has been passed by the vote of two-thirds of the members, chosen to the senate and house of representatives in the manner prescribed by the Constitution.

Section 5. § 1. "Each house shall be the judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members in such manner and under such penalties as each may provide." The second paragraph gives power to punish disorder, and, by a two-thirds vote, expel a member.

Now, it will be observed that it requires two-thirds of both houses of "the Congress" to propose amendments; but a majority of each house shall constitute a quorum to do business. A quorum is not the senate nor house, but only a majority of either, and authorized to do business in the name and with the authority of either; but only such business as a majority of either house could pass if all the members chosen were present and voting. Under and by virtue of the 5th section before quoted, a majority of a majority, in doing business, has the effect and force of a concurrence of a majority of the whole. But a "quorum" of "the Congress" does not compose "the Congress;" it only composes "a quorum" of "the Congress," with power to transact such business only as a majority of "the Congress," in full session, might do. "A quorum" is not a majority of the members present, or who are admitted to seats, but a majority of those "chosen." All "chosen" by the people of the several States" to the house of representatives, and to the senate by the legislatures thereof, must be considered as members composing "the Congress" until for defect in the "elections, returns, or qualifications," their seats be declared vacant by the respective houses. That they are not permitted by a majority to take the oath of office does not destroy their membership; it only prevents their individual action as members. They, by the Constitution, when chosen become members, and are entitled to vote and be counted as component members of Congress, until their disqualification and exclusion from seats has been determined by their respective houses, and their seats declared vacant. For it must be borne in mind that it is not the oath of office or consent of a majority to their taking their seats that constitutes them 'members' but they constitute "members" of the house by being "chosen" by the people, and of the "Senate" by being "chosen" by the legislature; and they take the oath of office because they are "members," not to make them "members."

That such was the understanding of the framers of the Constitution, is fully illustrated by their providing in section 3, § 6, upon the subject of impeachment: "And no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present." If two-thirds of a quorum constitutes two-thirds of the senate; then the use of the word 'present' is without meaning. For it being provided that a majority of either house should constitute 'a quorum to do business' if a quorum be the senate then two-thirds of a quorum would be two-thirds of the senate; and the word 'present' was wholly uncalled for and useless—the power being already conferred upon two-thirds of those present. If a quorum be 'the Senate.' The framers of the Constitution did not so understand themselves, and hence they conferred, by express terms, the extraordinary power of impeachment upon 'two-thirds of the members present'—not requiring two-thirds of the senate—but only two-thirds of a quorum, or those 'present' constituting a quorum to do business.

The power to amend the organic law of the Union was more fully guarded than impeachment. It only requires two-thirds of a quorum, or of those 'present' constituting a quorum, to impeach; but to propose amendments 'two-thirds of both houses' of 'the Congress' must concur; not two-thirds of a quorum or of those 'present' but two-thirds of both houses.

The resolution submitting the proposed amendments does not come to us with the sanction of two-thirds of the members chosen by the States to the House of Representatives and Senate; twenty-two senators chosen by eleven States, and fifty-five members of the house of representatives chosen by the people of eleven States, not being admitted to seats nor counted in the pretended passage of the resolution; and is not, therefore, constitutionally submitted.

If it be objected that by this construction, contumacy, or negligence upon the part of States and people in refusing to elect members, would defeat the powers of Congress, the objection is met by the language of the Constitution, which constitutes the member chosen the Congress. None are members, and to be counted as composing the Congress, until they are chosen by the people of the several States to the House of representatives, and to the Senate by the respective Legislatures thereof.

The objection that the withdrawal of members and refusal to attend would defeat the powers of Congress is equally untenable; because, by the provision before quoted, less, even, than a majority, is vested with power to compel the attendance of absent members in such manner and under such penalties as each house may provide; and were their attendance enforced, their opposition would not be less formidable present than absent.—Each House has power to provide the penalty of expulsion for refusal to obey the summons, and thus reduce the congress to the members chosen and who attend in obedience to the requirements of the house. When expelled, the seat is vacated, until another be chosen to fill the vacancy.—Vacant membership does not exist under the Constitution.

Entertaining this view of the constitutional powers of the congress to propose amendments, the amendment submitted to your consideration is not regarded as coming within the sanctions of the Constitution, and therefore should be rejected. A further consideration of the amendment proposed is not deemed necessary, and objections to it in detail not required for this communication. I will only add that were the provisions as acceptable as they are objectionable, the fact that they are not proposed in conformity with the requirements of the Constitution would be sufficient to compel their rejection, and more especially so when they are held out as a condition precedent to admitting rights already secured by the existing Constitution.

It is idle to propose amendments to a constitution, the existing provisions of which are held at naught by those proposing the amendments. Let them first learn to obey that which already exists before proposing amendments thereto. In the language of my inaugural address, "a departure from constitutional faith is the foundation of all the evils now upon us; a return is the only permanent remedy."

Kentucky has ever kept this faith. She has given her blood to maintain and enforce the obligations of the Constitution upon her own people of the Southern States; and will not now falter in demanding, and exacting a like obedience from others by all appropriate means at her command.—We cannot consent to the overthrow and destruction of our government in the hour of its triumph. The constitutional unity of the States, and the rightful obligations it imposes, have been successfully asserted and vindicated by the valor and blood of our sons; and we will not now consent to the destruction of States, whose stars gem our national flag, and whose people are our people, whatever may have been their past errors. True allegiance—now—is the only proper test of loyalty to the existing Government. Let this test be applied, admit or exclude whom it may.

To make the support of a proposed change in the forms of government the test of loyalty to the existing constitutional Government, is far more iniquitous and unjust than to make the past disloyalty a perpetual test.—The former abuses and destroys manhood—the latter denies repentance and reform.

Pledges to support and maintain a government may be written on paper, but they can only be given in the heart. The voluntary consent to support and maintain a government is the only true pledge. This cannot be obtained by a policy in conflict with constitutional right, and which oppresses and abuses those from whom the pledge is exacted. A true statesmanship never yields principle to the fears of the timid—the hate of the sectional—the exactions of the covetous, nor the desires of the partisan. If these be discarded from our national councils, the wisdom of the Constitution will prevail, the hopes of the patriot revive, our discord be ended and our security established.

THOS. E. BRAMLETTE,
Governor of Kentucky.

Public Sale of Stock and Farm.

I WILL sell to the highest bidder, on the 15th day of January, 1867, a Farm, lying on the Georgetown and Frankfort turnpike 11 miles from the former and 7 from the latter place. This farm contains about

TWO HUNDRED ACRES

Of land, well timbered, well fenced, plenty of never-failing water, and under a high state of cultivation. It has upon it a large and commodious

STONE DWELLING, containing 13 rooms, conveniently and comfortably arranged, with stables, barn granary, ice-house, cistern, and a sufficiently number of out-buildings for servants.

This land is unsurpassed in fertility by any in the State, about 120 acres being under a state of cultivation, the larger portion of which is hemp land. The wood land is well set in blue grass; the timber being black walnut, ash and sugar maple.

The society of the neighborhood is unexceptionable, with every advantage of churches, and schools, and mills convenient—being within three miles of Spring Station, on the Lexington and Frankfort Railroad, furnishing every convenience for shipping produce to Cincinnati or Louisville.

I will at the same time sell a few good brood mares, milch cows, and other stock.—Terms made known on day of sale.

THE NEWS

Cynthiana, Ky., Jan. 10, 1867.

LOCAL MATTERS.

On Saturday last, our city was honored with a visit from one of the late Confederates, most dashing cavalry officers, Gen. Buford, who seems to look as hale and hearty, as when last he led his charging columns on. His business among us, was, we believe, of a private character. We wish the General a long and prosperous life, and may our citizens be often honored with his presence.

For the past week or more, our river has been in fine skating condition, of which the young people in goodly numbers have taken advantage. We have noticed scores of merry lads and lasses, whose joyous shouts rang out, with almost contagious effect on the clear frosty air, partaking of this the best of all exercises. The bright-eyed lasses with graceful forms and speeding feet, attended by our noted young gallants, "skim o'er the waters blue as though reared midst the ice and snows of the frozen North. For their sakes, we hope the ice may last until they are thoroughly satisfied.

We hail with pleasure the advent of that handsome sheet, the GEORGETOWN TIMES, which we find with our exchanges. Its accomplished editors, Messrs. Bell & Rucker, whom we have known long and well, we feel confident, are fully competent to the task of keeping their banner ever to the breeze, in defence of the principles they so long ago espoused. May the good people of Scott, be for many years blessed with their teachings.

The holidays are over, and their attending festivities have about subsided, every thing passed off smoothly, and with order, or course our ears were greeted with the incessant roar of fire-crackers, and our olfactory with the sulphurous perfume, (it such we will be allowed to term it,) which we have no doubt, from the Indian like yells of many urchins gave, them an immense amount of joy. Now and then we hear of some friend being surprised by a storm, which causes a shower of young folks in their midst, to partake of their hospitality, and make the night lively with happy hearts, and dancing feet.

To our young and handsome friends, Tom. Burns and his constituent Barney, of the Rankin House, we feel under everlasting gratitude.—When we were perishing with cold, like good Samaritans with outstretched hands with something warm therein, they came to our relief. May they live forever, if not here, then in a happier home.

A NEW-YEAR'S GIFT.—Dame Fortune gave a lucky turn to her wheel, this week, for our friend, Mr. J. F. Lebus, who has just been informed that he is the holder of a ticket, calling for the modest little sum of $1000.00. There must be something in dreams, after all; our fortunate young friend had a premonition, during which the fairy queen of the dream-land paid him a visit, and communicated to him the welcome news, that he was soon to get a lift from an unexpected quarter; and strange as the coincidence may seem, the next day were sent to him some lottery tickets.

Encouraged by the smiling countenance the fairy queen seemed to wear, while on her nocturnal trip, he sent on the duplicates. To his surprise and joy, they have just conveyed to him the intelligence that the sum of a round thousand awaits his disposal. A New-Year's Gift, worth accepting, that.

While there are many things of interest to the business community, perhaps none is of more importance than Fire Insurance. The Globe Ins. Co. of Kentucky (Mr. J. D. Bonferrant one of the best business men of Louisville President), is now doing a large business in different parts of the state, and we can safely recommend them your money remains in the State. Their agent is now at the Rankin House.

Some two hundred workmen in Cleveland are stockholders in a co-operative grocery, which furnishes them with goods at cost prices.

On Monday last the 7th, the new Sheriff Capt. James N. Frazer, and his deputy Richard Robertson, who were elected last August, were sworn into office. We have the greatest confidence in both of these gentlemen and feel assured that they will do their whole duty. If the Capt. will only serve his neighbors and friends half as well as he served his country, we will be more than satisfied.

We invite the attention of our readers to several new advertisements in this week's news.—For groceries, hardware &c., it would be well for our citizens to visit Mr. I. T. Martin's and receive attention from his polite and handsome clerks, Reed and George.

We would advise all to go to Charly Reickle's to have their jewelry repaired, and while there they will be regaled, with a sight of his new and splendid assortment, of Gold and Silver ware.

OFFICE OF THE DEMOCRATIC EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE FOR HARRISON COUNTY, CYNTHIANA, KY., January 10th, 1867.

There will be a mass meeting of the Democracy of this county at one o'clock on MONDAY, the eleventh of February, (it being County Court day), for the purpose of selecting delegates to the State Convention that is called to meet on the 22nd day of February, in the city of Frankfort, and for the transaction of any other business that may come before this Convention.

"In calling this convention, we feel authorized to include all voters who cordially and in good faith subscribe to the principles of the Democratic party of Kentucky as promulgated in its late Convention of the first of May, and who are willing to render allegiance to its organization, for the purpose of forming a closer union of all our fellow citizens desirous of preserving the remnant of constitutional liberty left us from the shocks of civil war, and the encroachments of the Radical, and fanatical mob now wielding the power of the Central Government."

I. T. MARTIN,
Chairman.

KENTUCKIANS BOUND TO VENEZUELA.—There are in our city at the present time fifty stalwart, whole-souled sons of Kentucky bound to Venezuela, where they are promised 1,400 acres of land and $200 apiece upon their settlement. They are mostly from Georgetown and the neighborhood, and we are glad to see that during the fitting out of their vessel, they are enjoying themselves among their many friends here. They sail for their new home on Saturday. To be candid, we do not think they will find better homes or truer friends than in the old blue grass country they are leaving; but if they must go, we bid them God-speed, and do not doubt that they will soon rise to the dignity of generals and governors in that country of earth quakes, volcanic eruptions, and political revolutions. We would warn them, however, to be ware of the black eyed senoritas.—N. O. Pic., 3d.

A Good Work.—Two little ladies who sign themselves "Belle and Mag" request us to notice the fact that nine little girls living on Brooks avenue, intend giving a supper and a fair, the proceeds of which are to be devoted to enclosing the section in Hollywood Cemetery where little Joe Davis, son of our beloved ex-President is buried. LONDON, Jan. 5.—England has been visited by a snow storm of unusual and extraordinary severity. It commenced on Wednesday and continued to Friday morning. Fine Scott Farm

FOR SALE!

HAVING determined to quit Farming, I will offer at private sale the Farm on which I now reside, situated in Scott county, Ky., on the turnpike from Georgetown to Cynthiana. Said farm contains nearly finely timbered and in a high state of cultivation. The farm runs through the farm, cutting off 120 acres, which renders it capable of being divided if necessary. There is upon the farm a substantial BRICK HOUSE, two stories high and containing eight rooms double portico in front and large two story porch in rear. An excellent kitchen and pantry, good stables and all necessary out-buildings. On the 120 acres there is a comfortable dwelling and good stable and fine young apple orchard—about 60 acres of the land well timbered.

400 Acres of First Rate Land,

The farm will be sold altogether or will be divided to suit purchasers. Persons wishing to purchase will please call and examine prices or address me at Newtown, Scott county, Jan. 3-67.

VALUABLE

TOWN PROPERTY FOR SALE.

I have determined to sell my property in Cynthiana, which consists of Three Houses, two of them Frame, and one Brick, situated on the North East corner of Main and Pleasant streets.

The Brick is a good dwelling House, containing some five or six rooms, and in excellent condition. It is now occupied by Dr. McNeese. The Doctor's office is in the corner building and Mr. Richard Cummins occupies the third house as a Furniture and undertakers establishment.

This property is situated in an excellent portion of the city of Cynthiana, and is valuable. Those desiring to purchase will address me at Centreville, Bourbon County Ky. My residence is at Jacksonville.

STATEMENT OF THE

Cin'ti Home Ins. company,

Of Cincinnati, Ohio.

CAPITAL, stock, $100,000 00

Somebody's son was out last night.
Brushing about the town;
And if I mistake not, he was tight—
"Tight as a lily (flower)."

Know he is considered a moral youth—Above suspicion; but that is no reason—so tell the truth—
He hasn't a "brick in his hat."

Daylight morality often takes Strange fancies into his head.
And "days the d—," or "jumps up shakes."

When the public eye is in bed,
"My son can't dance," somebody said.
For never a lesson took in—
But he danced last night when you weren't in bed.

And Twilight was there to see,
You may call it dancing, or not, as you plese.

Then at 6 o'clock he was home,
Dressed in a "frock" as a "single-foot put."

At 10 o'clock he was out,
"My son can't dance," somebody says.
But he danced last night when you
weren't in bed.

Well, may be he didn't—but then,
That he danced last night like one who was.

Can he be proved by a hundred men,
Yet something was tight—yes drunk—
last night—

So drunk he fell hardy crawl;
Perhaps 'twas the brain of a crowless fool.

That I found in my garden wall,
So, for fear I'm wrong and somebody's right.

My lovely words I recall,
And say that the fellow I saw last night
Was nobody's son—that's all.

A HORRIBLE WOMAN.—A bankrupt merchant returning home one night, said to his noble wife: "My dear I am ruined; everything we have is in the hands of the sheriff."

After a few moments of silence, the wife looked calmly into his face, and said: "Will the sheriff sell you?" "Oh no!" "Will the sheriff sell the children?"
"Oh, no!" Then do not say that we have lost everything. All that most valuable remains to us—manhood, womanhood, childhood. We have lost but the results of our skill and industry. We can make another fortune if our hearts and hands are left us."

Gen. Grant has issued the following important order:

The attention of commanding officers of departments, districts, and posts is called to the provisions of Article 41 of revised Army Regulations, series of 1863, concerning the care and responsibility for public money, property and accounts. It is the duty of each commanding officer to enforce a rigid economy in public expenses, and to correct all irregularities and extravagance which he may discover; to see that all public property is properly cared for, and not lost and destroyed through neglect; to carefully see to all disbursements and account submitted for his approval, and see that the public interests are in every way protected.

GOLDEN WEDDING.—Mr. Wm. Ryder, of this place, on Christmas eve, celebrated his golden wedding, having been married fifty years. He has nineteen grand children living. Of the large number who were present at his wedding fifty years ago, none are living save Mr. and Mrs. Ryder.
Shelby Sentinel.

RELIEF FOR SOUTHERN ORPHANS.—A
"calico party" given by Colonel and Mrs. B. M. Hall, on the 24th, for the benefit of the Southern Orphans' home in Tennessee, notwithstanding the unfavorable weather, was by no means a failure. Such an exhibition of "calico" was never before witnessed in these parts.—Shelby Sentinel.

DEEDS OF CHARITY.—The series of suppers and tableaux recently given in this place under the auspices of a number of our citizens for the suffering people of the South was a complete success in every particular. The handsome sum of $849 was realized, which will be something in the way of relief to that unfortunate and destitute people.—Georgetown Times.

A French traveler in Central Asia met a learned Persian who had been studying with much admiration some Paris newspapers. Pointing to the advertising page he said: "This cannot be thoroughly comprehended, except by a sage. He who invented it was a benefactor of humanity. In a singularly narrow he has been able to collect the most valuable information; the honorable marriages which have taken place in the best circumstances of fortune; the houses on sale or to let; the best works; and above all, the most precious and venerable medicines."

A traveler in the South tells the following story of Elkanah Gilkey and his marvellous dog, Truetone.
After Truetone's death, Elkanah mended his buckskin breeches with a part of his dog's hide. "Ever afterwards, Elkanah found more deer than ever, for as soon as ever he came one, or any kind of varment, the patch would swell up and strain and throb so much that it nearly burst the stitches."

& Clay to New York, bought $700.

five first premiums during the fall of 1884;
besides the Gold Medal at the American Institute New York. It is just now being introduced in the West. I feel free to extend to the same responsibility I exercise over my other business, which with my friends at least, will be sufficient guarantee for them to accept my choice of machines as their own and this save themselves the exceeding perplexity of an extended investigation.
Sample machines can be seen at my music store.

Breaking and Training Horses
THE undersigned would respectfully inform his friends and the public generally, that he has again determined to turn his attention to handling and training horses.
His place of business is about two miles from Cincinnati on the Scott Farm, on the road leading to the Fair. The farm is one of the best watered places in Kentucky.

SEWING MACHINES.
In connection with my Piano-Forte agency
I have Wilcox & Gibbs' Traded Loop Sewing Machine, which equals any other in simplicity, durability, cheapness, noise-lessness, and beauty of motion. It has received the most marked commendations ever given any one machine, no less than twenty-five first premiums during the fall of 1884;
besides the Gold Medal at the American Institute New York. It is just now being introduced in the West. I feel free to extend to
